June 30 - July 1, 2009 at the Heritage Hotel, Southbury, CT

Sponsored by the Connecticut Association of Schools (CAS), with support from the Connecticut State Department of Education (CSDE) and the State Education Resource Center (SERC).

When principals can't do it all, what should they be doing to raise achievement and close gaps?

Tuesday, June 30, 2009 – Day Session

RAISING ACHIEVEMENT AND CLOSING GAPS:

Lessons from Schools on the Performance Frontier and Implications for Principals

Kati Haycock, President of the Education Trust

Ms. Haycock is one of the nation's leading child advocates in the field of education. She currently serves as President of the Education Trust. Established in 1992, the Trust does what no other Washington-based education organization seeks to do – speaks up for what's right for young people, especially those who are poor or members of minority groups. The Trust also provides hands-on assistance to educators who want to work together to improve student achievement, pre-kindergarten through college. Kati's focus will be on strategies principals can use for reducing the achievement gaps that exist within and among Connecticut's schools and districts.

LESSONS FROM AN UNCOMMON JOURNEY:

What One Leader Learned by Returning to His Classroom Roots

Lol Fearon, Education Consultant, Connecticut State Department of Education

Lol Fearon is a consultant in the Bureau of District and School Improvement, Connecticut State Department of Education. His journey to this present position is an uncommon one. After 24 years in school administration with the last 5 spent as a school district superintendent, Lol returned to the classroom as a first grade teacher. For the following 6 years, he busied himself with planning lessons, assessing and teaching six year olds, preparing for field trips, meeting with parents, attending faculty meetings and, most importantly, cleaning tables after snack. Lol's presentation will discuss his return to the classroom and how his experiences in leadership impacted on his ability to be "just a teacher."

Wednesday, July 1, 2009 – Day Session

RAISING ACHIEVEMENT AND CLOSING GAPS:

Leveraging Assessment, Supervision, and Evaluation to Improve Teaching and Learning

Kim Marshall, author of "The Marshall Memo"

Kim Marshall is the author of the Marshall Memo, a weekly publication that keeps principals, teachers, superintendents, and others well-informed on current research and best practices in the field. Drawing on his experience as a teacher, principal, central office administrator, and writer, Kim lightens the load of busy educators by serving as their "designated reader" and provider of a rich vein of ideas and resources that can help them to be more effective. His focus here will be on those high leverage activities connected to assessment, supervision, and evaluation that principals can use to improve the quality of teaching and learning in their schools.

Participant Comments

"Every aspect of the institute was top shelf. I enjoyed the lesson, the food, the friendliness of the staff here, etc. I loved the interaction of the "younger, newer administrators" and the more experienced folks. There seemed to be a lot of respect for various opinions."

Very positive! Another terrific institute! I always enjoy the opportunity to challenge myself to think differently.

It was wonderful again. The presenters were excellent. I'm going home/back to school with many ideas, how to start the new year.

Refreshing-organized-great opportunity to meet other administrators and to discover that we share common goals, issues, successes and challenges.
