2026 Heart of the Arts Award

PRESENTED TO

Noah Hoffman

RHAM HIGH SCHOOL, HEBRON, CT

Noah Hoffman exemplifies compassionate leadership, using the arts to foster connection, belonging, and joy within her school community. This year, she served as a peer coach in the Applied Arts special education class, where she quickly became more than a leader; she became a trusted friend. Through her compassion and authenticity, Noah helped create an environment where students felt safe, valued, and empowered to be themselves.

Noah has made it her mission to ensure that no student feels overlooked. Whether in the art room or throughout the school community, she intentionally includes Applied Arts students in moments many take for granted, including pep rallies, school dances, and celebrations. RHAM High School Principal Penny Bryzgel shares that “Noah is a natural leader who is compassionate and reaches out when she sees someone in need or recognizes when someone could use a friendly face.” At the homecoming dance, Noah demonstrated what true character looks like. While many were focused on social expectations, she chose connection, spending nearly half the evening with the friends she made in Applied Arts. In doing so, she showed loyalty, intentionality, and a genuine commitment to making others feel valued. That is who Noah is.

During a pep rally, while serving as head cheerleader, she noticed two students standing nervously at the back of the gym. In a moment when most would remain in the spotlight, Noah chose empathy. Without hesitation, she stepped away, walked over, took their hands, and ran with them. She transformed apprehension into joy and isolation into belonging.

That is leadership, not just being seen, but truly seeing others.

As head cheerleader of the high school competitive team and a coach for the middle school program, Noah leads with empathy and sets the tone for inclusion and respect. Noah says, “But all throughout I’m always trying to help my teammates and I’m trying to push them to be better because I can’t be better without my teammates also growing.” She is also an active participant in Unified Sports®, where she uplifts and encourages others, often stepping away from recognition to stand beside those who need support most.

Despite balancing an after-school job, advanced art classes, and multiple leadership roles, Noah approaches everything she does with resilience and grace. After navigating a significant personal loss, she has continued to demonstrate strength while remaining a source of positivity for others. As a member of the LGBTQ+ community, she models authenticity and helps foster a culture of acceptance within her school.

Noah plans to attend Central Connecticut State University, where she will study art education. She aspires to become an art teacher and continue creating the kinds of spaces she so naturally builds. Spaces where every student feels seen, respected, and empowered through the arts.

Noah has been selected as a 2026 Section One Winner by the National Federation of State High School Associations. This prestigious honor places her among just eight students nationwide to receive this recognition. This distinction is a testament to her exceptional character, her unwavering commitment to the arts, and the meaningful impact she has had on those around her.
