IMPROVING SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

A Workshop for School Leaders

OUR APOLOGIES!

This workshop is oversubscribed, so registration is now closed. Given the importance of this topic and the interest it has generated, we will try to host a second workshop in the spring.

Joe Pedemonti is a Special Education Teacher and Educational Coordinator for The Webb Schools at the Institute of Living in Hartford. He works primarily with high school and middle school students through their Attendance and Credit Recovery Programs. In addition to coordinating these services for The Webb Schools, he organizes and directs their extended school year services for students, sits on Hartford Hospital's Employees' Council Executive Board, and was a member of the Zero Suicide Champions committee. As a result of his extensive experience working with school avoidant adolescents, Mr. Pedemonti was invited to present at the School Mental Health Conference in Boston offered by Harvard Medical School and Cambridge Health Alliance, was the keynote speaker at the 5th Annual Juvenile Review Board / LIST Conference, and speaks to school districts and agencies across the state of Connecticut on the topic of school avoidance and attendance and credit recovery.
