Tuesday, March 14, 2006

Presenter: THOMAS MOONEY, ESQ., SHIPMAN & GOODWIN, LLC., and NEAG SCHOOL OF EDUCATION, UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

A legal perspective on the do's and don'ts of writing teacher evaluations, developing action plans, and observing teachers. These workshops will help administrators ensure that all preliminary groundwork is in order and evaluations are written appropriately. Administrators may bring in actual cases for analysis.

WORKSHOPS III & IV

Differences in Style and Differentiated Staff Development in the Evaluation Process

Tuesday, April 4, 2006
Tuesday, April 11, 2006

Presenter: KATHLEEN A. BUTLER, Ph.D., THE LEARNER'S DIMENSION, and ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

Differentiated staff development allows a faculty to work from its strengths, to increase its repertoire of skills and abilities, and to keep up-to-date with students' needs as it frees the administrator to work more personally and intensely with teachers who have special needs. During these two sessions, we will (1) consider a pyramid model of differentiated staff development that involves teachers in their own performance assessment; (2) examine how the administrator's style will influence its use, and (3) consider how teachers with different styles work best within the process.
