Conference Topics:

“A Legal Update That Every Assistant Should Know”

Attorneys Thomas B. Mooney and Gwen Zittoun, with the law firm of Shipman and Goodwin, LLP, in Hartford are back by popular demand!

Tom and Gwen will cover all the up to date legal issues that every administrative assistant should know, as well as answering your questions in an informal setting.

“Relieving Workplace Stress Through Simple YOGA Techniques”

Is your workplace somewhat stressful and filled with time sensitive demands that seem overwhelming? Is there a better way to keep the focus while managing work over load that piles up daily?

This session will introduce participants to a practice that unifies mind, body & spirit. YOGA is ideal for balancing the physical and emotional effects of stress. With a few simple postures and breathing techniques participants will learn how to reduce stress and integrate them into the daily routine. Your day will end refreshed, focused and energized!

Cynthia Paolino is a certified instructor who has worked with clients in a variety of settings for over 20 years. No matter the client, from beginner to advanced, Cynthia’s presentation will be engaging, fun, and enlightening for all!

Conference Topics:

“A Conversation With Hena Daniels, News Anchor WFSB”

Hena Daniels anchors Eyewitness News at 11. She also reports "Your Stories", a segment answering questions about towns and cities for Connecticut viewers. She also serves as an adjunct professor at Capital Community College and was an adjunct professor at the "Connecticut School Of Broadcasting."

Hena started her career as a one man band reporter in Watertown, NY. She then moved down South and worked as a reporter at WTOG-TV, in Savannah, GA. In October 2005, Hena joined WFSB-TV's Eyewitness News team as a general assignment reporter and became weekend anchor in October of 2008, making her one of the first Pakistani anchors in the U.S.

In 2008, a reporting adventure took her to Pakistan days after martial law was declared in the country. Hena had exclusive access to a military base in Karachi. She interviewed former President Pervez Musharraf's retired Lieutenant Colonels. She also reported at Benazir Bhutto's house while the Prime Minister was under house arrest and weeks before being assassinated.

Hena has won several awards including an Associated Press award for Best Spot News, Best Breaking News and Best Sports Feature. In 2009 and 2010, she was voted Best Reporter by the readers of Hartford Magazine.
